Pride in Policing...Pride in Diversity

Serving with Pride offers a confidential, safe network of peers who understand the systemic barriers and stereotyping that are unique to the police environment, without being tied to any one police service. We have a long history of not only assisting our LGBTQ members but also improving the overall relationship between police and the LGBTQ public that they serve. The most significant catalyst for change in someone is for them know that they are NOT alone and that there are others who are in their corner encouraging & supporting their personal and professional growth. Serving with Pride is committed to providing this support.

“The fact is, while many police agencies have made many positive steps towards equality, including developing their own internal LGBTQ peer support networks, there are still police officers or employees who don’t feel comfortable being “out” at work” - Cst. Brian Mitchell, President

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

What makes SWP different from any other LGBTQ peer support network?
The benefit of SWP is that it is a province-wide, not-for-profit, LGBTQ peer support network (PSN) for police and criminal justice professionals that is not tied to any one organization or service. This means that if you are part of an organization that does not have its own PSN or if you are not comfortable with being “out” at your particular workplace, SWP can provide a supportive network of peers who understand the systemic barriers and stereotyping that are unique to the police and criminal justice environments.

I am not “out” at my workplace, how can SWP help me?
SWP provides a confidential supportive network of peers who understand the systemic barriers and stereotyping that are faced within the police and criminal justice environments. SWP also provides resources and education and opportunities for participation at social and learning events that will allow you to not only advance in your own personal and professional development but give you an opportunity to be a catalyst for change in your workplace.

I am already “out” and comfortable at my workplace, why should I join SWP?
The diverse experience and knowledge you will bring to SWP is critical to achieving our goal of encouraging, advancing and promoting LGBTQ policing and criminal justice professionals. Your participation will serve as a shining example; providing support and mentoring to those who need it and there is an opportunity for your continued success as a visible leader within policing and the LGBTQ community as a whole.

I am a policing or criminal justice student. Can I join SWP?
Absolutely! You too, bring valuable perspective and experience that is beneficial to achieving the goals of SWP. Your input and participation is encouraged not only because you have a lot to offer but also once you graduate and start working in your chosen career, you will bring to your workplace an awareness and expectation of equality that others may learn from.

As a member of SWP, will I have to do public speaking or appear in public?
As a member of SWP, you will be given the opportunity to appear at public events however there is no expectation that you will have to speak or appear in public at all. You alone will determine how much or in what way you would like to contribute or participate, based on your own level of comfort.
